LOCATION OF WORKERS OF THE BUREAU OF AGRICULTURAL ECONOMICS U.S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, JANUARY, 1931

HOW REPORTS ARE PREPARED AND DISTRIBUTED

The principal work of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics is the gathering and distribution of information on the business aspects of the agricultural industry.

The Bureau spends over $3,000,000 annually in gathering and distributing current information. More than 1,000 workers are assigned to this work of whom about 300 are connected with the Crop Reporting Service and 400 with the Market News Service; the others are divided among several other informational activities. Most of these workers are in the field. Of the entire personnel of the bureau, which on January 1, 1931 numbered 2,695 persons, approximately 1,088 are located in Washington and 1,607 in field stations, including 30 in foreign countries.

The informational work is administered through the divisions listed on the inside front cover of this list, each of which controls its own branch offices. Reports are issued according to plans approved in the administrative office. The Director of Economic Information assists the Chief by maintaining general supervision over the form and method of releases, prepares press and radio releases that go out from Washington, supervises the editing of periodicals, printed bulletins, and other matter from Washington, and of special publications for extension workers, and supervises exhibits and motion picture work prepared in the Bureau.

Two general divisions of the information are recognized: (1) current economic facts, which are gathered and released as soon as ready, by radio, press and mail, (2) analytical summaries, special reports, and interpretive statements which are of a more general educational nature and which are given distribution through the extension service and other State agencies. The first class of information includes crop reports, market news reports, etc., the second class includes the outlook reports, agricultural and price situation reports and other special commodity reviews of a less timely nature. In the first group facts are presented for face value without interpretation, whereas material in the second group is explained and analyzed for educational uses.

The Crop and Market News Service draws upon seven divisions that collect information: The Division of Crop and Livestock Estimates, the five commodity market news divisions (Cotton; Livestock, Meats and Wool; Fruits and Vegetables; Dairy and Poultry Products; Hay, Feed, and Seed); and the Foreign Service. The information gathered by each of these is assembled and released immediately in separate forms either at Washington or from the field offices and is later consolidated into various types of publications for permanent record.

THE FEDERAL AND STATE CROP AND LIVESTOCK ESTIMATING SERVICE

The Crop and Livestock Estimating Service consists of the Crop Reporting Board and the staff of the Division of Crop and Livestock Estimates at Washington and 44 State statisticians who are located in the States. These men work under general direction of the office at Washington, gathering and distributing State information and forwarding it to Washington to become a part of the Federal reports. Each of these State officers can furnish estimates of the crops and livestock in their respective States, as well as copies of the Federal reports.

INTENTIONS TO PLANT REPORTS

Intentions to Plant Reports. These reports (which show farmers' intentions to plant spring-sown crops, except cotton, as of March 1 and fall-sown grain as of August 15) are published in "Crops and Markets". Mimeographed summaries are published in Washington on announced dates, usually within 10 days of the date to which the reports refer. State summaries containing data of interest in individual States are issued after the data are published in Washington, by agricultural statisticians for each State.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLE PRODUCTION

Fruit and Nut Crop Reports. State statistics on fruit and nut crop production are included in the regular monthly crop reports issued about the 10th of the month. Three or four days later, a more comprehensive report on "Fruit Crop Prospects" is usually issued in which the statistical reports are combined with State notes, a summary on each crop and interesting foreign crop items. Rarely are estimates made of the amount of production utilized for canning, drying or other manufacturing, but all such fruit utilization information, when available for publication, is included in the fruit prospect report. Except for strawberries there are no established series of estimates on small fruit production, current information being limited to such notes as may appear in the fruit prospect report.

Potato and Sweet Potato Reports. The detailed statistical reports on production of Irish (or White) potatoes and sweet potatoes, by States, are issued in the regular monthly crop reports and usually three or four days later in a crop prospect report similar to that on the fruit crops. Several special reports on potatoes are also issued during the year, the following being the more important of these: (1) report on Merchantable Potato Stocks on January 1 in 35 late States, including also an analysis of the utilization of the late potato crop and the reported acreage growers intend to plant the coming year. The report is generally available about February 1. (2) Reports on Commercial Early Potato Production in 19 States, chiefly in the south but extending as far north as New Jersey, Maryland, Kentucky, Missouri and Nebraska; includes reports regarding intended commercial acreage, issued from November to March, production reports from April to August, and later, summaries for the season.

Other Vegetable and Truck Crop Reports. State statistics are compiled and issued covering the commercial production of various important vegetable and truck crops. The reports are divided into two distinct series as follows: (1) Commercial Truck Crops for Shipment, commonly called Truck Crop Reports, comprising estimates on strawberries, cantaloupes, watermelons, and the principal vegetables that are grown for shipment by rail, truck or boat to markets more or less distant from the point of production. Local or market garden production is not at present included in these estimates except in instances where the local sales occur as a minor phase of the shipping enterprise. In most of the reports the estimates are grouped by States according to marketing seasons. (2) Truck Crops for Commercial Manufacture, commonly called Canning Crop Reports, and comprising estimates of the principal vegetable crops utilized by canning and packing establishments, including pimientos, cabbage for kraut and cucumbers for pickles.

The truck and canning crop reports are released principally in the form of commodity sheets, each containing current statistics and crop comments for one or more groups of States. At occasional intervals, a collection of timely crop news items are issued without statistical matter. The dates for release of reports are regulated according to the usual season of the commodity in each group of States. The list of approximate release dates is too lengthy to include here, but will be forwarded upon request. Persons desiring only reports on certain crops should specify those in which they are particularly interested.

Miscellaneous Crop Reports

Louisiana Cane, Sugar, Syrup, and Molasses. These reports show Louisiana cane acreage, production, and distribution, and production of cane sugar, syrup, and molasses. Preliminary data are published in December and revised data are published in the spring (usually in May) by the Washington and New Orleans offices. Summaries are published in "Crops and Markets".

Sugar Beets and Beet Sugar. These reports show acreage, production, and farm price of sugar beets and extraction and production of beet sugar. Preliminary data are issued in December and revised data are issued in the spring (usually in April) by the Washington office. These reports are printed in "Crops and Markets" and data from them are also published as circumstances demand or permit by branch offices in States interested.

Bean Production by Varieties. This report shows production of dry edible beans, by varieties, in each State; is published annually in "Crops and Markets" (usually December); and is mimeographed for separate distribution.

Commercial Fertilizer used on Cotton, and Sales of Fertilizer in Cotton States. These are complementary annual reports usually published in June or July in "Crops and Markets".

Reduction in Yields from Stated Causes. This report is based on an annual survey of farms of crop reporters and is published in "Crops and Markets". Data for cotton are usually published in June and data for corn, wheat, oats, potatoes, and apples are usually published in the fall.

Corn: Utilization for Grain, Silage, Hogging down, Grazing, and Forage. This report is supplemental to the December preliminary estimate of corn production and is usually published in the January issue of "Crops and Markets".

Tobacco by Types (Acreage, Production, and Value). This is an annual report complementary to the tobacco data published in the December Crop Report. It is usually distributed with the mimeographed December Crop Report and is published in "Crops and Markets" for January. Forecasts of tobacco production by types are also published monthly from July to November with the monthly Crop Reports of the Crop Reporting Board.

Monthly reports on range and livestock conditions in the western States are issued from the Denver regional office and State reports are issued by most of the western States.

Average Prices of Farm Products Received by Producers. This report is issued in mimeographed form from the Washington office on or about the twenty-eighth of each month. The report shows currently for the United States, average prices paid producers for 26 farm products as of the fifteenth of each month with comparisons, relative farm prices of crops, livestock, poultry, livestock and poultry products, and indices of farm prices, by groups, and for all groups; also estimated prices of 34 farm products currently, by States; corn-hog ratios for the United States, the North Central States and Iowa; and indices of prices farmers pay for articles purchased, Bureau of Labor Statistics indices of wholesale prices of non-agricultural, agricultural, and food products; farm wage index numbers; and an index of the general wage level.

One page of each issue is devoted to a discussion of current changes in farm prices and a brief analysis of factors affecting prices paid producers for farm products. Price data from this report and excerpts from the discussion of farm prices are published the following month in "Crops and Markets". Distribution of the mimeographed report is limited to newspapers, economists, business statisticians, Federal and State extension workers, and others who have a definite need for these data, immediately upon release.

Farm Labor and Wages. This quarterly report is released in mimeographed form from the Washington office on or about the eleventh of every January, April, July, and October and is printed about three weeks later in "Crops and Markets". It contains average wage rates per month and per day, with and without board, for farm labor; a statement of supply and demand for farm labor by States, geographical divisions, and for the United States; wage rates and supply demand statistics by geographical divisions, with comparisons; an index of farm wages for the United States; and a brief discussion of current wage rate changes. Distribution of the mimeographed report is limited to statisticians, economists, State and Federal extension workers, and others who show a definite need for the information immediately upon release.

Special News Letter to Price Reporters. This multigraphed letter is issued at the Washington office on or about the twentieth of each month and distributed to price reporters of the Division of Crop and Livestock Estimates only. It is designed primarily to supply business men, who deal directly with the farmer, with pertinent facts regarding agriculture and general business conditions. The letters contain a discussion of farm prices and general business conditions, a review of current crop conditions and production forecasts, a discussion of the livestock market including price situation and receipts, and abstracted statements of the crop and livestock outlook reports periodically issued by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Separate letters go to each of four main divisions of the United States; each forms a letter reviewing conditions pertinent to its section.

Wholesale Prices of Commodities. This mimeographed statement of wholesale prices of 27 articles commonly bought by farmers, is issued at the Washington office on or about the twelfth of each month. It includes production statistics on 16 articles of industrial importance. The data are selected from bulletins of the Bureau of Labor Statistics and the Department of Commerce. Issued periodically for State statisticians of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, only. Some of the data are re-published in reports to crop reporters sent from the field office.

THE MARKET NEWS SERVICE AT WASHINGTON

AND BRANCH OFFICES

The Market News Service of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics is operated through a series of branch offices of five of the divisions of the bureau. Each branch office reports to its respective division in Washington and gathers and distributes information only on the products covered by that division. These offices are not as a rule consolidated in the principal cities but are located near the trading centers of the products they report; therefore, no single office in the larger cities has available crop reports on all subjects. Separate mailing lists are maintained by different offices; consequently requests for publications must be sent to each office in a given city.

FOREIGN AGRICULTURAL SERVICE

"FOREIGN CROPS AND MARKETS"

The weekly mimeographed publication, "Foreign Crops and Markets", is a primary outlet for information gathered through the Foreign Agricultural Service. The publication has been appearing under the present title since March 1922. Each issue contains a section devoted to current foreign crops and market developments, and, in addition, usually contains a feature article on some aspect of foreign competition and demand for agricultural products.

Foreign news is gathered through the foreign offices of the Bureau at London, Berlin, Marseilles, Belgrade, Shanghai, Buenos Aires, Pretoria and Sydney; also from reports of the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, from consuls and foreign representatives of the Department of Commerce. Reports on foreign crop conditions, etc., are received by radio, cable and mail. Significant items are released at once via radio, the press and mail before appearing in "Foreign Crops and Markets" or the various other news services maintained by the Bureau. "Foreign Crops and Markets" is distributed to a limited list of producers, dealers in agricultural products, farm journals, newspapers, educational institutions and trade organizations, particularly those who are in a position to republish the material or circulate it in agricultural sections.

WORLD PROSPECT REPORTS

Mimeographed reports are issued monthly under the above title analyzing the world situation (foreign and domestic) for certain agricultural products. The products so treated at present, under the direction of the Division of Statistical and Historical Research, are: Wheat, cotton, wool, flaxseed, dairy products, hogs and pork. From time to time additions may be made to the list of commodities in this group. Most of the foreign material going into these reports is supplied through Foreign Agricultural Service.

FOREIGN FRUIT AND NUT CROP PROSPECTS

Latest reports on fruit and nut crop developments in foreign countries, received in the Foreign Agricultural Service, are issued monthly in connection with the "Fruit Crop Prospects" report of the Division of Crop and Livestock Estimates.

FOREIGN NEWS RELEASES

Short mimeographed reports are issued by the Foreign Agricultural Service on a number of special products, such as, apples, citrus fruit, prunes and certain nuts. In the case of apples, weekly releases are issued during the export season covering European market conditions. Some of the fruit and nut releases are being replaced by leased wire messages to the producing areas especially interested in the information.

COLD STORAGE REPORTS

The Cold Storage Report Section compiles and releases the following reports: A general cold storage report covering about 30 commodities including apples and pears in fresh state, cold packed fruits, dairy products and eggs, frozen poultry, frozen and cured meats and lard. A cold storage report is also compiled and released on about 35 edible varieties of fish and a report of meat packing house operations is compiled.

Monthly Reports. The general cold storage report shows holdings as of the first of each month and for the first six months of the current year. Release dates for the first six months of 1931 are as follows: January 12, February 13, March 12, April 13, May 12, and June 12, at 2 P.M. Dates of release for the last six months are not yet decided upon but they will be on or about the twelfth of the month.

The fish cold storage report shows holdings as of the fifteenth of each month and is released on the last day of the month. The report of slaughterhouse operations is ready for publication on or about the twenty-fourth of each month and covers the operations of the preceding month.

SITUATION REPORTS

"THE AGRICULTURAL SITUATION"

"The Agricultural Situation". This is a 24-page bulletin issued on the first of each month, by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. It contains a brief general summary of current conditions, including pertinent statistics relating to production, movement, consumption, and price of the important farm products. Its general purpose is to furnish extension workers and others with a concise picture of economic condition in agriculture from month to month. Its free distribution is limited to U. S. Department of Agriculture or State college workers or cooperators, to libraries, and the press. It is obtainable from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, for 25 cents a year.

THE PRICE SITUATION

The Price Situation. This is a monthly review of the trend of farm prices of farm products with a resume of conditions and probable trends during the succeeding months. It is designed for economists, extension workers, and others, who are devoting close attention to price changes. Issued in mimeographed form for limited distribution on the fifteenth of each month. A summary of this report is printed each month in "Crops and Markets".

FARM REAL ESTATE SITUATION

Farm Real Estate Situation. A yearly printed report in the regular circular series of the Department of Agriculture is issued near the close of the calendar year. It covers the previous rental year (March to March). It reviews briefly the general situation; discusses values in the separate geographical divisions and States and causes for any change in values; change in farm ownership including foreclosures, forced, and voluntary sales, farm mortgage credit and taxes; and other factors bearing upon the farm real estate situation. Free on request as long as the supply lasts.

OUTLOOK REPORTS

The annual agricultural outlook report is prepared in January as soon as the final reports on the previous year's farm operations become available. It is prepared at a conference of the various commodity and economic specialists of the bureau, assisted by specialists from other bureaus in the Department of Agriculture, and economists and extension workers from various States. This group is organized into committees, each of which analyses the facts regarding a single commodity and prepares a statement describing the situation during the past year and the probable trends of the coming year. The committee reports are then passed by the outlook conference group as a whole. The outlook is designed to bring together all available facts which will help producers to decide upon their plans for the year. The Federal outlook report is printed as a circular. Over 200,000 copies are distributed through extension workers, crop reporters, and others.

State Outlook Reports. Following the preparation of the Federal outlook report, many of the State Colleges and Extension Services prepare State outlook reports bearing particularly upon conditions in their several localities. Federal men cooperate in this work and in the outlook meetings which are held in the States. In some instances regional outlook conferences are held in which the problems of a region are given special consideration. The Extension Service of each State can furnish information as to the character of outlook reports available within that State.

Seasonal Outlook Reports. Supplementary statements revising the annual outlook report are issued during certain periods of the year on certain farm products. A summer hog outlook statement is issued in July following the June Pig Survey. Summer reports are also issued on lambs, beef cattle, winter wheat, and poultry. These reports are distributed in mimeographed form by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics and are published in "Crops and Markets".

ECONOMIC AND OUTLOOK CHARTS

Economic Charts. Charts and maps on economic subjects to the numbers of many thousands are available in the form of photographic prints, rota-print books, and bromide enlargements. A list of these economic charts, classified by agricultural subjects, is issued for the use of economic workers and teachers. Any one may buy photographic prints of charts or maps. Prices are 10¢ each for 8 x 10 prints; 50¢ each for bromide enlargements, 28 x 34; $1.00 each if the latter are mounted on muslin.

Outlook Chart Books. A series of handbooks, 8 x 10 in size, containing maps and charts regarding principal crops with explanatory legends, are issued for outlook workers. This list now covers the following:

Beef cattle	Hogs	Poultry and eggs
Dairy products	Potatoes	Sheep and lambs

Wall Charts. Enlargements of outlook charts suitable for use in lectures in classrooms are available upon order at 75¢ each for unmounted prints and $1.25 each if mounted on linen 30 x 40 inches. Orders can be filled only as the photographic facilities of the bureau permit.

Film Strips of Charts. The outlook charts have been reproduced in film strips for projection upon the screen. These rolls containing about 100 selected charts, can be obtained from the bureau or from the Extension Service for $.80 each. These film strips form a most convenient method of handling the material if a darkened room and screen are available; they are much less expensive than wall charts.

RADIO MARKET NEWS

Daily Radio Market News. A daily radio market news service is given by the bureau in cooperation with more than 100 radio broadcasting stations in the United States. At all of these stations the reports are broadcast by radio telephone, making them immediately available to any individual who may have a suitable radio set and who is within the transmitting radius of one of the stations. This service is available in more than 40 States.

In most instances, the broadcasting is done by stations that are operated by private commercial organizations and that receive their reports directly from the Federal bureau, or in cooperation with some State marketing agency, or by stations at the State universities and colleges of agriculture.

Persons who wish schedules and additional information should communicate with the Division of Economic Information, Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

PERISHABLE AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES ACT

This act requires all commission merchants, dealers, and brokers handling fresh fruits and/or fresh vegetables in interstate commerce to secure a license from the Department, the annual license fee being $10. It makes it unlawful to make a fraudulent charge, to reject or fail to deliver in accordance with the terms of the contract, to dump without reasonable cause, to make a false statement as to quality, quantity, disposition of, or condition of the market for any commodity, to fail to account correctly, to misrepresent the origin of any commodity, or to remove or tamper with any notice on a car or package containing a certificate as to the grade of the commodity contained therein. Punishment may be by publication of the facts or suspension or revocation of license.

Investigations of apparent violations of this Act are made on complaint of interested persons. Preliminary complaints may be made by wire if conditions make it necessary and will be handled by the Department in the same way. Complaints not settled in this way and those in which such quick action is not necessary may be made the subject of formal complaint, which should be accompanied by true copies of all available supporting papers.
